

Piccadilly Puppets Classroom Guide

Once Upon a Time in China

This enchanting Chinese tale teaches the importance of being honest. The Emperor is very old and needs to find someone to take over his duties, as he has no son. The new leader must be smart and strong, kind and courageous, patient and honest, especially HONEST. How will he find just the right boy? (Based on the story of The Empty Pot).

HISTORY

The Piccadilly Puppets have been entertaining and educating students for over four decades. Our performers are professional puppeteers who also have extensive experience working with children. We use a variety of puppetry styles and offer a large repertoire of programs that relate to curriculum.

What is the Emperor's main problem?

What are the character traits the Emperor believes are important for his job? Which one does he decide is the most important? How does he test the boys to find the right one (or, why is Ping chosen)?

Name something you saw in the show that was invented in China.

Name a type of puppet used in the show.

Extend the Learning: Post-Show Activities

Pre- or post-show:

Find China on the globe and see where it is in relationship to the U.S., and compare the size of China to the size of the U.S. Find major cities and rivers.

The Chinese people no longer have an Emperor. Research to find out what kind of government they do have.

Post-show:

The Emperor says that the boy chosen to be the next Emperor must be smart and strong, kind and courageous, patient and honest. He thought of a way to test the boys for honesty. Can you think of a way he could have tested them for one of the other characteristics listed?

Research to see what other things besides the kite and wheelbarrow were invented in China, and draw pictures of those things (a few are fireworks, umbrella, paper, gunpowder, compass, chopsticks, ice cream).
